APPLIED PHYSICS STUDENT AWARDS PROGRAMME:

Presentation Awards

Best PhD Oral

For the most outstanding Oral presentation (at the annual SAIP conference) in Applied Physics by a doctoral student enrolled at a South African Institution for Tertiary Education.

Best MSc Oral

For the most outstanding Oral presentation (at the annual SAIP conference) in Applied Physics by a Masters student enrolled at a South African Institution for Tertiary Education.

Best PhD Poster

For the most outstanding Poster presentation (at the annual SAIP conference) in Applied Physics by a doctoral student enrolled at a South African Institution for Tertiary Education.

Best MSc Poster

For the most outstanding Poster presentation (at the annual SAIP conference) in Applied Physics by a Masters student enrolled at a South African Institution for Tertiary Education.

Best BSc Honours Presentation

For the most outstanding presentation (at the annual SAIP conference) in Applied Physics by a Honours student enrolled at a South African Institution for Tertiary Education.

Guidelines and Rules

1. The awards are open to any student registered at a South African tertiary institution. In the case of past students, a maximum of two years, or 1 year for Honours Award, after the graduation ceremony may have lapsed at the time of the closing date of the awards programme.
2. The presentation/publication must originate from the student's proposed (or completed) thesis or dissertation or any formal report pertaining to that degree/level for the awards programme.
3. Once a student has won a particular degree/level award (also in the other Specialist Subgroups), he/she may no longer compete in that particular degree/level awards programme.
4. The student may enter either one oral or one poster presentation but not both in a particular year.
5. Lecturers who are studying towards an MSc or PhD may not enter the oral presentation award.
6. A publication may receive only one award.
7. In a particular year, only one publication may be submitted. In the case of a publication with one general heading but consisting of several sub-papers, all the papers may be submitted.
